From the PUBLIC ADVERTISER. Nov. 20.

Every Man has his Price. WALPOLE.

AS the great Corrupter found by experience that every man had his price, he practiſed them with ſucceſs, and laid the foundation of the ruin of this kingdom. His ſucceſſors have ſyſtematically trod in his ſteps, and have thereby taken off every man that tho't himſelf a Patriot;—the two greateſt inſtances are Pulteney and P—tt.

Since then every miniſter has found my Motto verify'd, whenever they held up places, penſions, or titles to the obſtinate, is it not aſtoniſhing, that they have not uſed theſe ſucceſsful means in North America, and more eſpecially ſince they have found the good effect of it in Pennſylvania, where they are kept by the Doctor, reſident here, in perfect obedience, in conſequence of his being appointed Poſt-Maſter of half that continent, and his Son Governor of New-Jerſey?

The appointing four Judges of Vice Admiralty and three of the Commiſſioners of Cuſtoms, all natives of America, is a right meaſure; the good effects will ſoon be found: but this Walpoliſm principle ſhould be made more extenſive, by a few of the leaders in each colony being corrupted; and they ſhould begin with Meſſrs. Otis, Cuſhing, Dickinſon, Dulany, &c. by this means the miniſtry would prevent oppoſition more effectually than with an army of 20,000 men.

SPRINGFIELD, December 26.

THERE have been buried in the town of Newport, in Rhode-Iſland, the year paſt, 150 whites and 31 blacks. This ſtate is ſuppoſed to contain 7000 ſouls.

Boſton, Dec. 29. It is reported that ſome of the troops here, have received marching orders from General Gage's—Some ſay they are deſtined for Newport, and for New-York.

January 2. There have been baptiz'd at the Rev. Dr. Elliot's meeting the preſent year, NINETY-TWO.

By Captain Cooke, who arrived at Providence a few days ago from St. Lucar, in Spain, we learn, that about the firſt of September laſt part of the city of Bourdeaux was entirely deſtroyed, by a ſudden violent guſt of wind, and a great number of inhabitants buried in the ruins.

The affairs of America engroſſed much converſation among the Spaniards.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman at New-York, dated Dec. 22, 1768.

—"I juſt now am told, that Lord Botetourt has diſmiſſed TEN of the TWELVE Virginia Council, for having joined with the aſſembly in the petition, &c."

Letters from Maryland mention, that on receiving advice of Mr. Eden being appointed their Governor, and that the preſent one Mr. Sharpe, would ſoon be recalled;—a deep concern ſeemed equally to affect all degrees of people, on the proſpect of being deprived of a Governor, whoſe adminiſtration was eminently diſtinguiſhed for juſtice and mercy, and who, at the ſame time that he ſupported, with the moſt honourable firmneſs, his Majeſty's prerogatives, and the Lord Proprietor's rights, yet, with the moſt juſt benevolence of heart, carefully avoided any infringement of the rights of the ſubject, thereby preſerving the laws, and the peace and happineſs of the province, which are the chief ends of ſociety and government.

January 9. We hear there are ſeveral veſſels fitted out on this coaſt, by the King's armed veſſels and cutters, for ſo poſted breaches of the acts of trade; one of them Captain M'Cobb, bound from this place to the Eaſtern ſettlements.—Capt. M'Cobb has been there ſome days.

Philadelphia, Jan. 9. At a meeting of the American Philoſophical Society for promoting uſeful Knowledge, held at the College in this city, on Monday the 2d inſtant, we hear the following officers were elected for the enſuing year.

New-York Jan. 16. By letters from Ireland, we learn, that Capt. Shipboy, James M'Dougal, Charles Donaldſon, and the Negro Man, that went off in the ſhip Providence's Yawl, in company with the boat that Captain Clark was in, [as mentioned in this paper of laſt] were all taken up alive by a French frigate, and carried to Old-France.

Boſton, January 16. At a general council held on Wedneſday laſt night at the Council-chamber, his Excellency was pleaſed to nominate Gardner Chandler, Eſq; to be a juſtice of the peace in the county of Worceſter—Nathan Cuſhing, Eſq; to be a juſtice of the peace in the county of Plymouth.——To which nomination his Majeſty's council did adviſe and conſent.

Philadelphia, Jan. 16. The American Philoſophical Society, held at Philadelphia, for promoting uſeful Knowledge, &c. purſuant to their adjournment, to meet at the College this evening, at 6 o'clock, to conſider a draught of laws prepared by the committee appointed for that purpoſe, at laſt meeting.

"We have lately had ſeveral letters from New-Orleans, of the great impatience with which the French inhabitants beheld a Spaniſh government eſtabliſhed among them; and that ſome late reſtrictions impoſed on their trade were extremely diſagreeable, and likely to be productive of ſome extraordinary revolutions. Agreeable to this we have intelligence by a ſloop arrived laſt night from thence, that the French had taken the command from the Spaniards, and had ſent Mr. d'Ulloa, the Spaniſh Governor, with all his troops, to the Havannah, and had likewiſe diſpatched three agents for Old France, to deliver to that court their reaſons for having adopted ſo precipitate meaſures.—It is reported, that Mr. d'Ulloa has given out, that he is called to return from the Havanna in a very little time, with a ſufficient force to chaſtiſe the French for the great inſult offered to the King, his maſter, in the perſon of his repreſentative; which they, on the other hand, are determined by no means to ſuffer, declaring, that they would much rather have their houſes, and remove their effects to the Engliſh ſide, than ſubject themſelves to the Spaniſh yoke, and his reſentment.——This affair will, no doubt, afford great matter for ſpeculation. For my part, would juſt beg leave to hint, what a noble opportunity is preſented for an exiling that colony to the Britiſh dominions; and with the great in power, may not delay an overture, in its conſequences, ſo manifeſtly tending to the advantage of the trade of the mother country."

Boſton, January 19. With Capt. Rowland are ſent over the commiſſions for our new American judges of the Admiralty, viz. Hon. Robert Auchmuty, Eſq; for New-Hampſhire, Maſſachuſets Bay, Rhode-Iſland and Connecticut. Hon. Jonathan Sewal, Eſq; for Nova-Scotia, Quebec, &c. Hon. Jared Ingerſoll, Eſq; for New-York, New-Jerſey, Pennſylvania, Maryland and Virginia; and Hon. Auguſtus Johnſton, Eſq; for North and S. Carolina, Eaſt and Weſt-Florida. The ſalaries of each £. 600 ſterl. per annum, payable out of the fines and forfeitures in America: if that fund ſhould prove inſufficient, then the deficiency is to be made up by draughts on the Treaſurer of the navy, payable out of the proceeds of men of war's old ſtores, &c.

January 23. Some letters from London intimate, that the proceedings of the town-meeting and the convention here, are highly reſented at home: Other letters ſay, that it was a prudent meaſure: But as thoſe matters are ſaid to be referred to the principal lawyers in England, nothing would be determined upon until their opinion be given.

The reports of the removal of ſome of the Governors in North-America, has ſubſided; and we hear his Excellency the Governor of this province has received the fulleſt aſſurances of the royal approbation of his conduct.

From letters, public prints, &c. bro't by Capt. Scott, we learn, that Aſia was ſwimming in blood—That the affairs of Europe were in a critical ſituation, the Turks, Ruſſians, Poles, &c. actually engaged in hoſtilities, which, with the conduct of France reſpecting Corſica, made many apprehend that the war would ſoon become general—That the affairs of America ſo engroſſed the attention of the miniſtry and nation, that it was thought they would endeavour to keep out of the war until they were happily ſettled:—That the colonies, and this province and town in particular, had been moſt groſsly miſrepreſented from hence; but that pens had not been wanting at home to ſet Q. B. and the C——n characters and conduct in their true light:—That the m——y had been led to apprehend that this town had been actually in arms, and the province ready for ſetting up an independency; that the tranſactions of our town-meeting was to encourage the ſame; and the convention in Boſton an actual aſſumption of the powers of government:—That ſince they had received authentic accounts of their proceedings, and ſeen the Boſton Journal of occurrences, the prejudices raiſed by thoſe falſe and wicked repreſentations had greatly ſubſided, and our friends and advocates were daily increaſing; that the convention was looked upon and conſidered by the judicious as a moſt ſalutary meaſure, calculated to prevent rath proceedings, and a legal procedure for the redreſs of grievances:—That ſome perſons among us had repreſented to Adm——l——n that the peaceable landing of the troops ſhould be reſiſted by our weakneſs and fears, rather than our loyalty and concern to prevent the evils of a civil war, which by the influence of ſuch might have been precipitated, and that they had nothing now to do but to follow the blow, and we ſhould be forced to ſubmit to every thing they ſhould think proper to impoſe, eſpecially if they at the same time would support and enjoy the American fund, whereby new penſions might be granted, new offices appointed, and preſent ſalaries encreaſed:—That anonymous papers had gone from hence to L—d M—ſſ—gh, ſcandaliſing and ſtabbing the moſt reſpectable characters among us, which his lordſhip had ſent back to G. B. to enquire into:—That G. B's repreſentations had involved the m—y, eſpecially the American S——y, in great embarraſſments, which had led him to order a particular account of all the pretended tranſactions to be ſent him, from the beginning of December before laſt, ſupported with proper vouchers; which plainly ſhews that G. B. is now put on the defenſive, but from his own knacks at taking private depoſitions, it requires the ſerious attention not only of this town, but as we have no aſſembly, of his Majeſty's council, & the whole province.—That the true friends of the nation are heartily deſirous of having all diſputes with us amicably ſettled; ſome of whom have adviſed us that it is in our power to get all things put upon their old footing, if this will now ſatisfy us; that nothing will more promote this happy effect than a continuance of our orderly and legal behaviour, and ſtrictly adhering to our agreement reſpecting the conſumption of non importation of Britiſh manufactures, at the ſame time exhibiting to the world, by a conſtitutional conduct, that we never can be perſuaded by any M——r to ſell, or be inveigled out of, our juſt rights and privileges, and that with the help of providence, we will not ſuffer them to be wreſted from us illegally by any power upon earth.

Extract of a Letter from London, November 8, 1769.

"—" Reſpecting the non importation of goods by the generality of your provinces, &c. for a conſiderable time, we think muſt work for the good of the whole; and we cannot help thinking it the moſt judicious ſtep that has yet been taken by the colonies:—We hope in the courſe of the coming winter our American friends will be ſet at eaſe, as it is the general opinion that every circumſtance that (reaſonably) gives them uneaſineſs, will be fairly attended to:—We ſincerely wiſh a happy termination of the preſent diſquietudes, and are very reſpectfully yours, &c."

Extract of a Letter dated November 10th, from one of the firſt houſes in London.

"We think the determination of the coloniſts not to import goods, the moſt judicious ſtep they have yet taken, and well work for general good.—We ſee with true concern the diſtreſſes of your town particularly; but as the parliament is now ſitting, and American affairs to come ſpeedily on the carpet, we are not without hopes that matters will be ſettled to the wiſhes of both ſides; we ſhould be extremely happy in being any way inſtrumental thereto."

By ſeveral other private letters from London we learn, That Mr. Wilkes's affairs wore a very promiſing aſpect;—That the miniſtry and people of Great-Britain were much relax'd in their ſeveral ſentiments of America; and that our friends increaſed daily:—That the eyes of the nation began to open, and the generality of them are now ſenſible that we owe much of our diſtreſs to the miſrepreſentations of perſons among ourſelves: One letter ſays, "What horror muſt ſeize thoſe men, who, upon reflection, find they have been inſtrumental in bringing ſuch miſery upon their country, and that by falſe repreſentations too."—That Dr. F. had given it as his opinion, in various companies, that by a ſteady, prudent, and moderate behaviour, we might obtain a full relief from the grievances under which we labour, and commends the reſolution of the merchants here not to import goods, as a neceſſary ſtep towards it.——That it was the opinion of many judicious men, that the B——d of C —— ſo would be aboliſhed, and our obnoxious —— removed, and that every matter of complaint would meet with a fair and candid attention from parliament.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, to his Friend in this Town, dated November 16, 1769.

"The applications for redreſs of grievances are near univerſal, what exception they will meet with is yet in ſuſpence; but certainly a calm, prudent, moderate temper in ſupporting them, will greatly conduce to their efficacy, tho' the miniſtry do not appear to be pleaſed with the univerſality of the petitions.

"Tho' the friends of America ſeem to increaſe, yet there is a powerful oppoſition, which will occaſion warm debates in the Senate."

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman of Diſtinction to his Friends in this Town, dated London, November 19, 1769.

"All the circumſtances of the coloniſts will be laid before the parliament, and I am not without hopes of your obtaining relief.——As to the convention, it was certainly a prudent meaſure and had a ſalutary effect, and you juſtly exerciſing right to diſclaim all authoritative and governmental acts."

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, dated November 12.

"We have received a particular account, journal-wiſe, of the parade of the ſhips and troops to our much injured town, on which ſome very juſt obſervations have been made; ſome which, and the account of the diſſolution of your convention, the intention of which is now better known;—that ſpirit of bitterneſs which lately prevailed is now greatly ſubſided.—Lord B——n made a motion in the houſe of C. to expel Wilkes, but without effect.—You have it in your power to relieve yourſelves from all unconſtitutional acts made here, by a ſteady and determined reſolution to omit the importation or conſumption of our manufactures, which I heartily wiſh, though I muſt greatly ſuffer by ſuch reſolutions.—The times will ſoon change—Mr. T—— and B—— are indefatigable in your intereſt. The papers will ſhew you we are not without benevolent and able friends and ſupporters. Great proſpects of a change in the miniſtry to our advantage.

D. F——n ſays, All will be right by and by ——."

Extract of another Letter dated London, November 20.

"A Journal of proceedings in Boſton has been printed in the St. James's Chronicle, Mr. —— is enamoured with the Boſtonian conduct. Some members of parliament have been warm in your favour—all your friends here would have you be abſolute reſpecting non importation. Dr. F——n has declared the Pennſylvanians will come into it, if the parliament do not redreſs our grievances, and that when they do they will keep their agreement. Your friends will not forſake you at any critical period, unleſs you forfeit their opinion of you by paſſive ſervitude, the idea of which they cannot bear: I rejoice frugality is actually practiſed with you.—It affords me redoubled diſtreſs to find that we owe our preſent diſtreſs to thoſe who are nurſed among you, had I heard of ſome perſons what I now know for (act I had diſbelieved it, we are told with a ſneer we ſhall ſoon have the company of Mr. O—s, &c.—I do not believe it poſſible the Boſtonians ſhould ſuffer it.—It has been reported, that you have delivered up your arms, I have ventured to aſſert that you neither have or will; your friends would forſake you for ſuch an action."

P. S. I have juſt received great pleaſure, by what has come to my knowledge.——The tide is turning, and I think you may have things on the old footing.

New-York, January 23. His Majeſty has been pleaſed to appoint HUGH WALLACE, Eſq; one of his council for this province, in the room of the Honourable WILLIAM WALTON, Eſq; deceaſed.

Extract of a Letter from London, dated November 27, 1768.

"The next packet from your ſide, I hope will bring orders leſs clog'd with political limitations. At preſent the attention of every body is fixed upon the parliament. It is generally thought that they will confirm the obnoxious meaſures heretofore taken; however, it is yet uncertain. In the debate that ariſes on the motion for returning the thanks of the houſe to the King for his ſpeech, there were not wanting ſome powerful ſpeakers on the ſide of America and Liberty; Mr. Bourke, Mr. Laſcelles, Sir George Saville, Col. Barre, Lord Strange, and ſome others, the great orators of the houſe: The ſame gentlemen, with Mr. Beckford, ſpoke ſtrongly in favour of Mr. Wilkes, whoſe petition is now before the houſe. They have ordered a copy of the records of the proceedings in his caſe to be laid before them, and the good or ill fate of that petition, will be a certain criterion by which we may judge of the principles of the houſe, with reſpect to America. If the miniſtry have a majority in the houſe, America, and Wilkes muſt expect the ſame fate.

Extract from a Letter to the Gazetteer, October 29.

"If the Americans ever refuſe to tax themſelves for their own ſupport, I will never defend their conduct; but if there is any juſtice or conſiſtence in the Britiſh conſtitution, I think there can be no doubt among honeſt Engliſhmen, but that they have an abſolute right to all the liberties derived from their charters.

"If the miniſtry do not, I hope the enſuing parliament will take this important queſtion into ſerious conſideration. Is it not, whether they are a parcel of rebels, and muſt ſubmit to be hanged? but, whether they ought not to enjoy their liberties, as fully and as unembarraſſed as any good ſubjects in Great-Britain? Let the Britiſh legiſlature give judgment for America as they would if themſelves ſtood in the ſame ſituation, and I am confident it will be a determination worthy of Britons, and to be had in everlaſting remembrance.

"Whereas if the narrow and unchriſtian ideas, propagated by ſome Britiſh-born friends to arbitrary power, ſhould influence a majority; our doom is fixt, and DIVINE PROVIDENCE, for our great wickedneſs, will make ourſelves the inſtruments of our own deſtruction! But, O, may God of his infinite mercy make us ſenſible of our real duty, which is to give peace to our brethren in America, and thereby a proſpect of proſperity to Old England! TRANQUILIUS.

From the PENNSYLVANIA JOURNAL. January 12, 1769.

To the Freeholders and other Inhabitants of the ſaid Province.

Gentlemen,

THE difficulties and embarraſſments to which the coloniſts have been and are ſtill ſubject, from a late parliamentary taxation of their property, and freſh impoſitions on diverſe articles of the Britiſh manufactures, which they cannot make for themſelves in ſufficient quantities, nor conveniently do without, have employed the ableſt pens in America, and been ſo clearly ſhewn to be inconſiſtent with their rights as freemen and the true intereſt of Great Britain, that many of our fellow ſubjects there, and it is hoped the adminiſtration itſelf, begin to be ſenſible of the weight of our reaſonings and remonſtrances againſt them, and to ſee the impropriety of ſuch meaſures; which gives ſome ground to expect relief by a repeal of thoſe burdenſome acts of parliament;—A proſpect, my countrymen, in which I ſincerely rejoice with you, not only as it will be a freſh proof of the wiſdom and juſtice of our mother country, but may prove the beſt ſecurity to the coloniſts againſt like impoſitions in future: for I dare not preſume that any but ſo late a full conviction of the repugnance of thoſe acts to the rights of freemen, and the mutual intereſt of Great-Britain and her colonies, will prevail with the government to repeal them, or that any attempt of the ſame nature will be made hereafter, unleſs the ſame wilful miſrepreſentations of our circumſtances, and moſt dutiful acquieſcence to the beſt of Kings, ſhould again be practiſed by rapacious ſycophants with their late wicked ſucceſs;—which God forbid! Since theſe diabolical inſtruments might poſſibly in time, have exaſperated the moſt peaceable ſubjects to a degree of madneſs little ſhort of withdrawing that duty and allegiance to our moſt gracious Sovereign, which I hope we ſhall henceforward univerſally pay from the two-fold inducement of gratitude and affection.

Yes, my countrymen, pleaſed as I muſt be whenever we are favoured with this act of goodneſs and juſtice from our mother country, I cannot think it adviſeable, that we ſhould immediately loſe ſight of, and lay aſide the ſalutary plans of DOMESTIC OECONOMY, which have been recommended to us, and partly carried into execution by ſome of the inhabitants, with benefit to themſelves and ſatisfaction to the public.

It has been aſſerted in a late number of the Chronicle, that the trade carried on by this colony with Great-Britain, is far from refuſing to our advantage, in the beſt of times, as we have few articles produced among us that ſuit for remittances; which obliges the merchant to ſend home gold and ſilver in payment of the numerous manufactures we receive from thence.

We certainly ought then, from a regard to our own intereſt, not to continue this trade in the extenſive manner we have done, though the preſent duties ſhould be taken off, and the price of Britiſh commodities reduced to what it was formerly; for even in that caſe, as the ſame cauſes muſt produce the ſame effects, we have nothing better to expect than a continuance or perhaps an increaſe of the debt we already owe to our mother country—the very evil from which ariſes our preſent diſtreſs, and which every poſſible means ſhould be employed to remove. But you'll probably aſk, what are the means in our power by which this deſirable end is to be attained?—I will tell you my countrymen. Let every man reduce the number of his ſuppoſed wants as far as he can, and learn to ſupply his real ones by his own induſtry, which we know to be practicable from the materials our country affords, and the experience of the prudent among us, who have already cloathed themſelves warmly and reputably, in their own manufactures, at a leſs price than they formerly paid for thoſe of Great-Britain; whence it is plain, that perſons thus employed, have not only reduced their private expences, but ſaved the whole price of their cloathing to the province, which, in a courſe of years, will pay debts, reſtore our credit, and ſecure that tranquil independance, which every true ſon of liberty muſt eſteem among the greateſt temporal bleſſings.

I know it is a prevailing opinion, that the want of money among us hath been a principal cauſe of the difficulties we complain of, and I believe it has ſome foundation; for we muſt allow that a currency of ſome ſort is very convenient in every community, ſo far as it is wanted for a medium of commerce. I am therefore not in the leaſt againſt the petition now on foot for emitting a large ſum in bills of credit, at a proper time, for a public loan; the great increaſe of trade with the increaſe of our inhabitants, and a farther cultivation of the province to accommodate them, may probably require it. But had we much more than ſufficient for theſe purpoſes, individuals might derive no benefit from it; for the greateſt general plenty would make no plenty with them, further than they are poſſeſſed of and employ the means of acquiring a ſhare in it. We muſt not therefore imagine that a great deal of money among us will ſupply every man's wants without care and induſtry—No—'tis the frugal and diligent only that can reap advantages from it—thoſe who are otherwiſe, inſtead of being relieved from their preſent embarraſſments by this means, may find that it has only afforded them an eaſier opportunity of running deeper in debt and completing their ruin.

Hence you muſt ſee, my countrymen, that a repeal of the revenue acts, and emiſſions of paper money in this province, are not the only requiſites to a real amendment of our circumſtances, for theſe incidents are no otherwiſe deſireable than as they may increaſe the practicability of ſuch amendment, but 'tis OECONOMY & INDUSTRY that muſt at laſt effect it;—to ſuppoſe the contrary, would not be leſs abſurd than, if a carpenter becauſe he is poſſeſſed of materials for a houſe, ſhould expect it will be built, though he never goes to work on it.

In fine, it is unqueſtionably our higheſt intereſt, to manufacture for ourſelves, ſo far as we have materials, and can do it without much interruption to agriculture, which ſeems the proper buſineſs in young ſettlements, and would no doubt be the choice of the coloniſts, were they in circumſtances to purchaſe Britiſh goods upon the terms they are now offered, but prudence and common honeſty abſolutely forbid it, at leaſt under our preſent difficulties.
